

Guests toast the DJC's 10th birthday

Over 70 local business professionals celebrated the Dorset Junior Chamber's 10th birthday with a black tie gala dinner on the 26th March, and raised nearly £300 for charity. DJC member the Lewis Manning Hospice was the beneficiary, with guests donating through entry into a 'heads and tails' prize competition.

The novel event at the Durley Dean Hotel in Bournemouth included a basic salsa class and disco, whilst guests even took away their own slice of DJC birthday cake! These included the DJC's past Presidents, and founding President Roan Fair spoke positively about the organisation's role and its continuing importance within the local business community.

In the DJC President's speech to the audience, Katie Wilson spoke about the input the DJC receives, stating: "There are lots of people in the local business community to thank for all of the support they have given the DJC. Now, my role is to take this on, grow the membership again this year and encourage members to become more active in letting us know what they want from the organisation."

Ms. Wilson went on to add: "I am so proud to be working with the current council to improve our Junior Chamber and nothing we do would be possible without the support and help of our members. As a voluntary organisation we are going from strength to strength offering professionals a chance to build relationships in order to improve their organisations and generate business."

With a new membership package in place for the DJC's 10th year, the group continues to arrange training, business events and networking through its busy timetable of activity.
